

ROYAL HOLLOWAY UNIVERSITY

The Royal Holloway University is a Grade I Listed Building situated in Egham, Surrey.

The Egham campus was founded in 1879 by the Victorian entrepreneur and philanthropist Thomas Holloway. College doors were officially opened in 1886 by Queen Victoria as an all-women college.

Repairs to the curved balustrade and main entrance wall involved ensuring the structural and visual integrity were sound. The weathered stones were repaired by our team of experts to blend into the existing architecture of the campus. New stone balusters were installed to those that were past the point of repair.
